Overview of San Diego County Property Taxes

Property taxes in San Diego County are a significant source of revenue that supports local services such as schools, public safety, and infrastructure. These taxes are assessed annually based on the assessed value of real estate properties within the county. The San Diego County Treasurer-Tax Collector's office is responsible for billing and collecting property taxes. Property owners are required to pay these taxes in two installments: the first installment is due November 1 and becomes delinquent after December 10, while the second installment is due February 1 and becomes delinquent after April 10. Understanding the structure and timing of property tax payments is important for ensuring compliance and avoiding penalties.

Property Tax Assessment Process

The County Assessor determines the assessed value of each property, which serves as the basis for calculating property taxes. This assessment considers factors such as property location, size, and improvements. Property owners receive an annual tax bill that details the amount owed for each installment. It is important to review the assessed value and contact the assessor's office if any discrepancies are noticed.
