Overview of Stevenson Financial Aid Office

The Stevenson financial aid office is dedicated to assisting students in obtaining the necessary funding to pursue their academic goals. Staffed by knowledgeable professionals, the office serves as a central hub for information, application assistance, and counseling related to financial aid programs. It ensures students are informed about various aid options and helps them navigate federal, state, and institutional funding opportunities. The office also provides personalized support to address individual financial circumstances, helping students plan their education financing effectively.

Mission and Services

The mission of the Stevenson financial aid office centers on promoting access to higher education by alleviating financial barriers. Services offered include financial counseling, aid package estimation, loan advising, scholarship application guidance, and workshops on managing student finances. The office strives to maintain transparency and support students throughout their educational journey.

Contact and Accessibility

The financial aid office maintains multiple channels for student communication, including in-person consultations, email, and phone support. It also offers online resources and frequently asked questions to assist students outside business hours. Accessibility is a priority to ensure all students, including those with disabilities, can obtain the assistance they need.

Types of Financial Aid Available

Stevenson financial aid office administers a variety of aid types designed to meet diverse student needs. These include grants, scholarships, loans, and work-study programs. Each category has unique eligibility requirements and application procedures, providing multiple pathways for students to finance their education.

Grants

Grants are a form of need-based financial aid that do not require repayment. The Stevenson financial aid office helps students apply for federal and state grants such as the Pell Grant and Maryland State Grant. These grants are awarded based on demonstrated financial need and are an essential component of many students' aid packages.

Scholarships

Scholarships are merit-based or need-based awards that recognize academic achievement, leadership, community service, or other criteria. The Stevenson financial aid office administers institutional scholarships and provides information about external scholarship opportunities. Students are encouraged to apply early and submit all required documentation for scholarship consideration.

Loans

Student loans provide another avenue for funding education, with repayment obligations after graduation. The financial aid office guides students through federal loan options such as Direct Subsidized and Unsubsidized Loans, as well as alternative private loans. Loan counseling is offered to ensure students understand terms and repayment responsibilities.

Work-Study Programs

The federal work-study program offers part-time employment opportunities to eligible students, allowing them to earn money to help cover educational expenses. The Stevenson financial aid office assists students in finding suitable work-study positions both on and off campus.

Application Process for Financial Aid

Applying for financial aid at Stevenson University involves several key steps coordinated by the financial aid office. Understanding this process is crucial to securing timely and adequate funding.

Filing the FAFSA

The first step typically involves completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The financial aid office provides guidance on accurately completing the FAFSA, which determines eligibility for federal and state aid programs. Stevenson University's school code must be included to ensure the institution receives the application data.

Submitting Additional Documentation

After FAFSA submission, students may be required to provide additional documentation such as tax returns, verification forms, or proof of residency. The financial aid office communicates these requirements and assists students in submitting the necessary paperwork promptly.

Review and Award Notification

Once applications and documents are reviewed, the Stevenson financial aid office prepares an award package detailing the types and amounts of aid offered. Students receive notification of their awards and can consult with financial aid counselors to understand their options and accept or decline aid components.

Eligibility Criteria and Documentation

Eligibility for financial aid at Stevenson University depends on multiple factors, including financial need, academic status, and enrollment level. The financial aid office evaluates each student's situation to determine aid qualification.

Financial Need Assessment

The primary criterion for need-based aid is financial need, calculated using the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) derived from the FAFSA. The office uses this data to allocate grants and subsidized aid to students with the greatest need.

Academic and Enrollment Requirements

Students must meet satisfactory academic progress standards and maintain a minimum enrollment status to remain eligible for financial aid. The Stevenson financial aid office monitors these requirements and informs students of any changes affecting their aid status.

Required Documentation

Documentation required may include:

- Completed FAFSA form
- Federal tax returns and W-2 forms
- Verification worksheets, if selected for verification
- Proof of citizenship or eligible non-citizen status
- Enrollment verification

Managing and Maintaining Financial Aid

Proper management of awarded financial aid ensures students can continue to benefit from these resources throughout their academic career. The Stevenson financial aid office provides ongoing support for this purpose.

Accepting and Declining Aid

Students have the option to accept or decline individual components of their financial aid package. The financial aid office offers counseling to help students make informed decisions based on their financial needs and borrowing capacity.

Maintaining Eligibility

Maintaining eligibility requires adherence to academic progress policies and timely communication with the financial aid office regarding changes in enrollment or financial status. The office monitors these factors and provides guidance to prevent loss of aid eligibility.

Loan Repayment Counseling

For students who accept loans, the financial aid office provides exit counseling and repayment information to prepare them for managing loan obligations after graduation or withdrawal.

Additional Resources and Support Services

The Stevenson financial aid office collaborates with other campus departments and external agencies to offer comprehensive support beyond direct financial assistance.

Financial Literacy Programs

The office organizes workshops and seminars on budgeting, credit management, and responsible borrowing to empower students with financial literacy skills.

Emergency Aid and Appeals

In cases of unforeseen financial hardship, students can seek emergency aid or appeal decisions through the financial aid office. Staff members assist in evaluating circumstances and providing possible solutions.

Career and Counseling Services

Coordination with career services helps students find employment opportunities, while counseling services support students facing personal or financial challenges affecting their education.
